LESSON 15

Present Perfect Simple

We use the Present Perfect Simple to talk about events:

- which happened not long ago (but we don't tell when) and have results now.

I have lost my keys.

Someone has eaten all the cakes!

Fred can't walk because he has broken his leg.

- which happened in the past, but we don't know or we are not interested in when they happened. We also use it when something has not happened yet but is possible to happen in the future.

Ann has been to Italy twice.

I haven't been to Japan yet.

He is very successful: he has written two novels and many theatre plays.

Time expressions often used with the Present Perfect Simple: already, ever, never, just, yet, still, lately, recently.

Just used with the present perfect means 'a short time before'.

I've just met your sister.

Tom's just called. He can't come to the party with us.

Yet used with the present perfect means 'at any time up to now'. We use it to emphasise that we expect something to happen soon. Yet (in this context) is only used in negative sentences and questions.

Have you booked the holiday yet?
I haven't been to Barcelona yet.

Still used with the present perfect means that something hasn't happened. We use it to emphasise that we expected the thing to happen earlier. Still (in this context) is only used in negative sentences.

I've been waiting for an hour and the bus still hasn't come.
They still haven't finished that project.

Already used with the present perfect means 'before now'. We use it to emphasise that something happened before something else or earlier than expected.

I've already spent my salary and it's two weeks before payday.
They have left already!

Formation rules: have/has + past participle (Also see the tables below.)

In the case of regular verbs add -d or-ed to the infinitive; if the verb is irregular, use its 3rd form.

Paul has repaired your watch.
Paul hasn't repaired your watch.
Has Paul repaired your watch?
