John: As you know, our company would like to sponsor another sport. The football team we have sponsored so far is asking for too much money. Now we are looking for something new and more exciting. Any ideas?

George: Well, there are several possibilities. How about basketball? It's a fast, exciting sport, and it is popular all over the world.

John: OK, that's a possibility. What do you think, Anna? Would basketball be a good choice?

Anna: I'm not sure. In many countries it is not that popular. Not in the same way as athletics.

John: That's true. It has got a lot more international appeal. George, how do you feel about this?

George: In my opinion, motor racing would be the perfect choice. It's fast, exciting, and its TV coverage is excellent.

John: That's a great idea, George. Why don't we write a briefing and send it to the other departments? We need their approval.

Anna: Absolutely. Let's do it!
