WRITING

Write an email to your English friend, Brian. Tell him about your new job, what you like and dislike about it.

Hi Brian,

How are things with you? I hope you're doing well!

I'm writing to tell you some exciting news: I recently started my new job as a junior software and cybersecurity developer.

There are so many things I really like about it. The projects are fascinating because I work on network security and web applications, which is exactly what I enjoy doing. My team is very supportive, and my colleagues are always ready to help me when I face a complex problem. Besides, the company allows flexible working hours, which makes it much easier to balance work with my university studies.

On the other hand, there are a few things I dislike. The commute to the office takes nearly an hour by train every morning, and the traffic can be quite exhausting. Sometimes the workload is very intense and the deadlines are tight, so I have to spend long hours sitting at my desk.

Anyway, I'm really enjoying this new experience overall. Let's catch up soon for a beer or a coffee! Give my regards to your family.

All the best,

Marco
