Interview With a Future Chef – Audioscript 2

Cookery shows are popular today and TV series showing competitions between prospective cooks are often successful. Today we are talking to one of these young talented cooks, Dana Lewis!

Q. Dana, you're from the north of England, is that correct?
A. Good morning everybody. Yes, I'm from Richmond, North Yorkshire. My family has been managing a farm up there for more than four generations. I can say I grew up in the country, with animals.

Q. So you've always been familiar with fresh, genuine food, haven't you? How did your background influence your choice to become a cook?
A. Yes, mum and my grandmother are amazing cooks, but I don't know if this made me decide to be a professional cook. As I child, I didn't use to help mum in the kitchen. I'd spend most of my time in the fields, with dad and my two elder brothers. I helped them and played with dogs, hens, little pigs, etc. We have a huge kitchen full of utensils, but I went there only at meals.

Q. I see. How did you decide then?
A. Watching … a cookery show! Some friends were watching Eat Well Eat Healthy, you know, the presenter was Ashley Lloyd, I liked him very much because of his sense of humour. In one episode of the show, a girl made some particular stew, with cream and leeks and suddenly I thought I could do the same. The following day I tried.

Q. Was it any good?
A. It was an absolute disaster! … But I had decided and I knew what I wanted to do. I started looking for cookery courses and schools and found one not far from home. Then I won a university grant and went into gastronomy.

Q. Do your family encourage you?
A. Yes, very much. They are lovely. Mum used to give me some precious advice and a lot of recommendations, but now she says that I can teach her…

Q. What dishes do you particularly like preparing?
A. Desserts, no doubts. I absolutely love eating and making desserts.

Q. People, often cooks, say that making desserts is one of the most challenging things in cooking.
A. I think it's true and this is another reason why I like it. When you make some great dessert, your satisfaction is even greater and you feel more motivated to do better. Also, it's creative and stimulating.

Q. Your plans for the future?
A. I want to open my own restaurant in London, obviously, where people can taste some great dishes from my village and some unbeatable cakes!
