07. Listening 1

Environment_7.1

Listen to Audio 1. Mark each sentence T (true) or F (false).

1. Alice started her fight in favour of animals as a child. _____
2. When she was a child, she liked zoos. _____
3. She's never been to San Francisco. _____
4. She thinks that the gorilla mother was angry. _____
5. When Alice was looking at the mother gorilla, she felt uncomfortable. _____
6. Alice understood what she wanted to do immediately. _____
7. She is contrary to clinical tests on animals. _____
8. She is completely against hunting. _____
9. Alice eats very little meat. _____
10. She doesn't think meat is necessary for our health. _____

07. Listening 1

Environment_7.2

Listen to Audio 1. Match each given word/phrase 1-10 from the interview with a definition A-J.

1. Activists.	A bring together things
2. Not at all.	B people who fight to cause some changes
3. Scared.	C wild animals
4. Even.	D giving milk to a baby from the breast
5. Wildlife.	E definitely not
6. Cages.	F a word used to emphasise something extreme
7. Breastfeeding.	G substances which give food essential for life
8. Ashamed.	H embarrassed
9. Collect.	I spaces surrounded by bars where animals or birds are confined
10. Nutrients.	J frightened

07. Listening 1 Keys

07.1	1F	2T	3F	4F	5T	6F	7T	8T	9F	10T
07.2	1B	2E	3J	4F	5C	6I	7D	8H	9A	10G

Centro Linguistico di Ateneo
Excellence in Linguistic Training

07. Listening 1 Script

Interview with an Animal Rights Activist – Audioscript 1

Q. Today, we are talking to one of the most famous animal rights fighters, Alice Kelly. Good morning Alice, have you always been an animal rights activist?
A. Good morning Valerie. Not at all! When I was a child I was scared of all animals, even insects! As a teenager, I started developing an interest in animals and I liked visiting the zoo in my city, to look at the beautiful wild creatures.

Q. So when did you start campaigning for the rights of animals?
A. It all started during a holiday in San Francisco. With my father, we went to visit a wildlife park, in which species from all over the world lived semi-free, meaning that they were not in cages but could move freely in large areas, while visitors walked on paths and could see the animals from afar. I guess it was one of the most advanced parks of this kind then… Anyway, at a certain point I noticed a crowd and found out that there was a female gorilla who was breastfeeding her baby.

Q. And how did you feel then?
A. The point is not how I felt, but how the gorilla felt. I stared at her and her lovely infant for a while, but soon realised that the mother was not comfortable. I'm pretty sure that she was embarrassed and did not like the attention of all those visitors. I felt embarrassed too, so I stopped looking at her and turned to my dad, saying "I don't like it, it's like seeing a human mother and child under observation on a stage". I understood then that I wanted to do something to protect animals.

07. Listening 1 Script

Q. And what did you do?
A. When I came back home, I started reading books and magazine articles about men and animals, about zoos, the use of animals in shows, animal testing, everything. Of course, I didn't have clear ideas on what I was going to do, but I knew I needed to collect as much information as possible.

Q. Talking about clinical trials, this is a controversial issue. What is your point of view?
A. I am against it, totally. In most cases testing new drugs on animals is just pure cruelty. And it's useless.

Q. What about hunting? Do you think that hunting must be limited or just abolished?
A. Hunting? It must be prohibited. Why let people kill an animal for fun?

Q. Are you a vegetarian?
A. Yes I am. The last time I ate meat I was probably seventeen, so I haven't eaten meat or eggs for years. We don't need it! Fruit, vegetables and other kinds of food are healthy sources of all necessary nutrients.