Regular and Irregular Verbs

Before speaking about the Present Perfect Simple, we need to review the REGULAR and IRREGULAR verbs.

What is a REGULAR Verb?
If a verb is regular, the Past Simple and the Past Participle both end in -ED.

For example:
WANT becomes WANT-ED
CLEAN becomes CLEAN-ED
FINISH becomes FINISH-ED

What is an IRREGULAR Verb?
When the Past Simple and the Past Participle do not end in -ED, the verb is irregular.

Rule	Infinitive 1st column	Past Simple 2nd column	Past Participle 3rd column
With some irregular verbs, the Infinitive, the Past Simple and the Past Participle are the same.	Cut Hit Put	Cut Hit Put	Cut Hit Put
Other irregular verbs have the same Past Simple and Past Participle (but a different infinitive)	Build Meet Tell	Built Met Told	Built Met Told
In other irregular verbs, all three forms are different	Eat Know Write	Ate Knew Wrote	Eaten Known Written

Remember! At the end of most grammar books, you will find a list of the most common irregular verbs, similar to the one above.
The INFINITIVE is the 1st column, the PAST SIMPLE is the 2nd column and the PAST PARTICIPLE is the 3rd column.

Pronuciation of -ED

The -ED at the end of regular verbs is often difficult to pronounce. Here is a table that will explain it!

If the infinitive of the verb finishes in:
D, T
The -ED is pronounced /id/
Example: wanted is pronounced /wanted-id/

If the infinitive of the verb finishes in:
C, CH, GH, K, P, SH, SS, TH, X
The -ED is pronounced /t/
Example: kissed is pronounced /kiss-t/

If the infinitive of the verb finishes in:
B, G, L, N, R, S, V, W, Y, Z,
The -ED is pronounced /d/
Example: loved is pronounced /lov-d/

Pronunciation of ED

/id/		/t/		/d/
T	Wanted	P	Helped	L	Called
D	Needed	K	Looked	N	Cleaned
		F	Sniffed	R	Offered
		GH	Laughed	G	Damaged
		SH	Washed	V	Loved
		CH	Watched	S	Used
		SS	Kissed	Z	Amazed
		C	Danced	B	Rubbed
		X	Fixed	M	Claimed

Words that end in a VOWEL SOUND use the /d/ pronunciation for ED.
Ex. Followed – Enjoyed – Played – Tried – Continued.

The pronunciation of words ending in ED depends on the final CONSONANT SOUND.
There are three ways to pronounce ED at the end of word in English:

/id/ /t/ /d/

Remember! Words that end in a VOWEL SOUND, use the /d/ pronunciation of -ED
Ex. TRIED = /TRIE-D/ FOLLOWED = /FOLLOW-D/ PLAYED = /PLAY-D/

Present Perfect Simple

How do you form the Present Perfect Simple?

We form the Present Perfect Simple in this way:
Subject + Present Simple of the auxiliary HAVE + Past Participle of the verb we need to use.

Example: I have eaten

First of all, let us review the Present Simple of HAVE:
I have
You have
He, she, it has
We have
You have
They have

As you can see, as in most English verbs, all the persons are the same, with the exception of the 3° person singular, HE, SHE, IT, which has the famous –S.

Present Perfect Simple

So now we are ready to learn about the Present Perfect.

As we said earlier, we form the Present Perfect Simple in this way:
Subject + Present Simple of the auxiliary HAVE + Past Participle (3rd column of the list!) of the verb we want to use. The affirmative and negative can both be contracted.
Since the Present Perfect is a compound tense, and it has its own auxiliary, the question will be formed by INVERTING the subject and the auxiliary, and the negative will be formed by adding NOT, as we already did in the Present Continuous.

Affirmative	Contracted Form	Interrogative	Negative	Contracted Form
I have eaten	I've eaten	Have I eaten?	I have not eaten	I haven't eaten
You have slept	You've slept	Have you slept?	You have not slept	You haven't slept
He has drunk	He's drunk	Has he drunk?	He has not drunk	He hasn't drunk
She has written	She's written	Has she written?	She has not written	She hasn't written
It has flown	It's flown	Has it flown?	It has not flown	It hasn't flown
We have cleaned	We've cleaned	Have we cleaned?	We have not cleaned	We haven't cleaned
You have wanted	You've wanted	Have you wanted?	You have not wanted	You haven't wanted
They have run	They've run	Have they run?	They have not run	They haven't run

When we use the Present Perfect Simple

We use it when we say that something HAS HAPPENED, usually NEW INFORMATION:
Examples:
The road is closed. There has been a road accident.
The police have arrested the thief.
'Ouch! I've cut my finger!'

When we use the Present Perfect Simple, there is a connection with NOW:
Examples:
John has lost his wallet. He can't find it (he doesn't have it now)
She told me her name, but I've forgotten it (I can remember it now)
'Is Sally here?' No, she has gone out.' (she is out now)

Just, Already and Yet

We often use time words (just, already and yet) with the Present Perfect Simple

JUST = a short time ago
'Are you hungry?' 'No, I've JUST had a snack.'

ALREADY = sooner than we expected
'Don't forget to call your mother!' 'I've ALREADY called her.'

YET = until now. It shows the speaker is expecting something to happen.
Use YET only in questions and negative sentences, at put it at the END of the sentence.
'Have you had lunch YET?'
'I've written the email, but I haven't sent it YET.'

Ever and Never

When we talk about a period of time that continues from the past until now, a period which is NOT FINISHED at the time of speaking, we use the Present Perfect Simple.

We often use EVER and NEVER with the Present Perfect Simple to speak about a period of time that continues from the past until NOW (a time which is not finished).

Examples:
'Have you EVER eaten caviar?' (in your life)
'No, I have NEVER eaten caviar.'
(NOT I haven't never… DO NOT USE A DOUBLE NEGATIVE!)

'Have you EVER been to Japan?' (in your life)
'Yes, I have been to Japan twice.'

Time words

When we talk about a period of time that continues from the past until now, a period which is NOT FINISHED at the time of speaking, we use the Present Perfect Simple.

We can use some TIME WORDS to express a period of time that is not finished.
For example: this year, today, since lunch, this week are all periods of time which ARE NOT FINISHED at the time of speaking.

Examples:
I have drunk three cups of coffee, today. (today is not finished)
'Have you studied a lot, this week?' (this week is not finished)
I'm hungry. I haven't eaten anything since lunch. (today is not finished)
I've gone skiing twice (two times), this year. (this year is not finished)

Present Perfect Continuous

How do you form the Present Perfect Continuous?

The Present Perfect Continuous is a mixture between the Present Perfect Simple and the Present Continuous.
Example: I have been eating

We form it in this way: Subject + Present Simple of the auxiliary HAVE + Past Participle of the auxiliary BE + the infinitive of the verb we want to use + -ING.

Affirmative	Contracted Form	Interrogative	Negative	Contracted Form
I have been eating	I've been eating	Have I been eating?	I have not been eating	I haven't been eating
You have been sleeping	You've been sleeping	Have you been sleeping?	You have not been sleeping	You haven't been sleeping
He has been drinking	He's been drinking	Has he been drinking?	He has not been drinking	He hasn't been drinking
She has been writing	She's been writing	Has she been writing?	She has not been writing	She hasn't been writing
It has been flying	It's been flying	Has it been flying?	It has not been flying	It hasn't been flying
We have been cleaning	We've been cleaning	Have we been cleaning?	We have not been cleaning	We haven't been cleaning
You have been wanting	You've been wanting	Have you been wanting?	You have not been wanting	You haven't been wanting
They have been running	They've been running	Have they been running?	They have not been running	They haven't been running

When we use the Present Perfect Continuous

We use the Present Perfect Continuous to speak about an activity or an action that has recently stopped or just stopped. There is a connection with NOW.

Examples:
'You look very tired. Have you been working a lot?' (you look tired now)
The garden is very wet because it has been raining since yesterday. (the garden is wet now)
'Why are your clothes so dirty? What have you been doing?' (your clothes are dirty now)

We often use HOW LONG…, FOR… and SINCE… with the Present Perfect Continuous:
Examples:
How long have you been studying English?
I have been studying English for two years. (FOR = the duration of the period)
I have been studying English since 2018. (SINCE = the beginning of the period)

When we use the Present Perfect Continuous

We can use the Present Perfect Continuous to speak about actions repeated over a period of time.

Examples:

Alice is a very good swimmer. She has been swimming since she was six.

(action repeated since - beginning of the period - she was six.)

Every morning they meet at the same café. They have been going there for years.

(action repeated for - the duration of the period - years.)

Compare the Present Continuous and the Present Perfect Continuous

Don't disturb me now. I'm working.

We need an umbrella. It's raining.

Hurry up! We're waiting!

I've been working hard. Now I'm going to take a break.

The grass is wet. It's been raining.

We've been waiting for an hour.

Compare the Present Perfect Continuous and the Present Perfect Simple

In the sentence 'He's been painting a picture', we are thinking of the activity. It does not matter if it has been finished or not. In this example, the activity (painting a picture) has not been finished. This is the Present Perfect Continuous.

In the sentence 'He has painted a picture', the action of painting the picture has been finished. Has painted is a completed action. We are interested in the RESULT (the painted picture, NOT in the activity itself. This is the Present Perfect Simple.

Present Perfect Continuous	Present Perfect Simple
We use the Present Perfect Continuous to say how long (for something that is still happening) How long have you been reading that book? They've been playing tennis since three o'clock. Where have you been? Have you been studying?	We use the Present Perfect Simple to say how much, how many or how many times How much of that book have you read? They've played tennis three times this week. I've studied a lot this week.
